Meet Your Trip Leaders:

PROFESSOR PAUL OLSEN

Dr. Paul Olsen is an Associate Professor in the Business Administration and Accounting Department at Saint Michael's College where he teaches courses in Managerial Ethics, Human Resource Management, Leadership, Internship Practicum, and Peace & Justice First Year Seminar. He has also led study tours to the European Union, Brazil, Canada, and France. He is a first generation American whose parents are Danish. As such, he has visited Denmark many times. He has published numerous business cases including one on Denmark's most famous company- Lego.

PROFESSOR TRISH SIPLON

Dr. Trish Siplon is a Professor in the Political Science and International Relations Department and Director of the Public Health Program at Saint Michael's College. She teaches courses in American and Global Health Policy, American National Politics, Research Methods and Senior Seminar. She has led study tours or supervised students conducting research in Tanzania, Kenya, Barbados, Jordan, Israel, and Palestine. She is a two-time Fulbright Scholar, in Tanzania and Jordan, and believes that international experiential learning can be a powerful and transformative learning opportunity. She also believes the Danish health and welfare systems hold important lessons for Americans, and is eager to explore them with students.
